

TERMS OF USE:

From time to time, we may change these Terms of Use for this site and the Privacy Policy Statement. Accordingly, please check back periodically.

As a Visitor to the website of Employers Overload, you agree to comply with all of Employers Overload's policies respecting the website and Services as provided to you or to which you shall be directed when using the Services. Employers Overload's customers violate Company policy when they engage in prohibited activities, such as abusive conduct and account abuse.

Abusive conduct:

Giving false information to obtain access to the Company's system and/or purchase and/or utilize any service. Engaging in any illegal, criminal or malicious activities. Any other activity or activities that Employers Overload, in its sole discretion determines is unethical or damaging to our other customers, users of the Internet, Employers Overload's Network or to our corporate reputation. Account abuse is defined as those many and varied activities that would commonly be termed abusive by computer professionals. These would include, but are not limited to:

Modification of, or tampering with, files not owned by the user:

Attempts to examine files that contain sensitive information not normally to be viewed by system users

Attempts to use system resources not normally available to users

Attempts to reduce the systems security, or to hamper the normal functioning of the system. (Note: The modification of sensitive files is considered acceptable when occurring under the normal function of common user programs designed to modify or examine those files, such as the password program.)

Attempts to violate the law.

Attempts to misuse the proprietary information, intellectual property or property of others for their or their own purposes.

You agree that you will not use any device, software or routine to interfere or attempt to interfere with the proper working of the System or any part thereof. You agree that you will not take any action that imposes an unreasonable or disproportionately large load on our infrastructure.
